Yes, scalping and other short-term trading strategies are allowed, as long as they are not abusive. There is no limit to the number of trades you can place per day. However, strategies that rely solely on arbitrage or risk-free arbitrage are not permitted. If such activity is detected, the Company may revoke the strategy and make any necessary adjustments to the account. For full details, please refer to the Trading Conditions and the Client Account Agreement (Abusive Strategies section) available under Legal Documents on the Portal or on our website.
